As public attention has been excited by the trial and execution of colonel Despard and his associates, we trust that the following charge of lord chief justice Ellenborough to the jurors, on summing up the evidence given against col. Despard, and his solemn and affecting address to the prisoners on passing sentence, will not be uninteresting.

(N. Y. pap.)

LORD ELLENBOROUGH summed up nearly as follows:—Gentlemen of the jury, the evidence on both sides, and the arguments of counsel being concluded, it only now remains for me to discharge my duty. An inkblot duty it certainly is, but considering with what minds you come prepared, for I have observed your deep attention to all parts of the cause, it will facilitate my means of doing it. Those means are by a faithful detail of the evidence, and such faithful observations upon it, as I am best able to make. Gentlemen, the prisoner stands charged with high treason, of three sorts, not very different in their nature: 1st, For compassing the death of the king; 2dly, For compassing to seize his person; and 3dly, For conspiring to depose him. The first of these is treason, by the statute of Edward III.; the two last, by a recent statute of the present reign. Eight distinct overt acts are stated as evidence of this intention. It is not necessary to do more than to state the substance of them. Gentlemen, the overt acts are the holding conversations for effecting those malignant purposes of heart. Before I state the evidence of the overt act, I think fit to say a word or two on the topics urged respecting the nature of the proof. It is said, by the defendant's counsel, to consist only of words, and that it cannot be treason. If it consisted only of loose words, the ebullition of an irritated or crazy mind, it would not be treason, because it would be too much to infer such a purpose as the destruction of the king from words so spoken. But when words are spoken at a public meeting, and addressed to others, exciting and persuading them to that purpose, it never was doubted by any one English lawyer; it never will be doubted, but that they amount to treason. Another subject upon which I wish to say a few words is, the nature of evidence by accomplices. That he is a competent witness, upon whose testimony you may found a conclusion, cannot be doubted. If it were not so, it would be a dereliction of duty in the judges sitting here, and those who have formerly sat in courts of justice not to have repealed such witnesses from the oath, and have told the jury that they were not fit to be credited. But they are always received and although sullied with the contamination of the crime which they impute to others, they are credible, though their testimony must be received with caution and attention. They may be confirmed by various circumstances, by the clearness of their own narration, or by the narration of others. They may be confirmed by the coincidence of external circumstance, and broken in upon by no one fact of adverse circumstance. In the case before us, when so many scenes are laid, all of which if untrue, may be falsified, and it is falsified in no one instance; if a person so situated is not to be believed, it would form a case by which conspiracies would always be protected, because conspiracies can never be known but through some who were participators in the crime. But the case would be otherwise as it regarded some who are not strictly accomplices. Such as I take it, is the case of Windsor. I do not think strictly that he can be called an accomplice, through, without question, a great degree of blame attaches to him for his conduct in repeatedly going to these meetings. Gentlemen, having made these observations, and if each evidence is confirmed, is consistent, is uncontradicted, and more especially confirmed from pure sources, it ought to be credited. I shall now proceed to detail the evidence itself." His lordship here read verbatim the whole of the evidence taken through the day. In commenting upon the form of oath he observed, that it appeared on the face of it to have an ulterior purpose, which was to be carried by the conflicts of arms, and not of reason or argument, or why was there a provision to be made "for the families of the heroes who should fall in the contest?" and if Despard was found distributing these papers, and acting with those united in the bond, it formed strong inducements of the purposes of his mind. Having gone over the evidence, his lordship continued, "Gentlemen this is the whole of the evidence; and you have been properly told, there is no question of law in this case. It is admitted that a traitorous scheme did exist; but it is denied that it was the prisoner's. If it was not his treason, whose was it? If the witnesses produced upon their oath were not to be believed, it was open to impeach them; but no such thing is done. Then, with respect to accomplices, we find in the law books particularly in the case of King, Charnock, and another, that the evidence was wholly that of accomplices, without half so many circumstances of corroboration as are found in this case. The main circumstance of the case is confirmed—that of the treason. Then who is the traitor? The prisoner is found in the society of those most unfit for his rank and situation, no account is given why he attended those meetings; we find him sitting down and associating with common soldiers, and partaking of their ordinary fare.

No other explanation is given of this but his former character; happy, indeed, would it have been for him if he had preserved that character down to this moment of peril. Now, gentlemen, this is the whole evidence on the one side, and on the other; see how it applies to the charge: first, with respect to an overt act, committed within the country. It is proved at the Oakley Arms, and at the Flying Horse; that point of law is therefore satisfied. The only remaining consideration is, whether you will believe the evidence of Blades, Windsor, Emblin, and Francis, or either of them? If you have any hesitation you will look at the circumstances of the confirmation. When he was taken with them, they had about them the mischievous furniture of their designs, I mean the printed papers. He was found almost in the act of command, and they of obedience. "Follow me, one and all," was the language he used. It was in confirmation that he was at the Coach and Horses, in Whitechapel, by Campbell and Dean, two soldiers totally unconnected with the conspirators, and in different witnesses. Their testimony perfectly agreed with that of Windsor. If you, therefore, believe Emblin and Windsor there is an end of the question. You have also heard the high character given of him by a man, on whom to pronounce an eulogy were to waste words; but you are to consider whether a change has not taken place since the period he speaks of. If you do not believe the witnesses, then he will stand exempted from the consequences of the charge imputed to him; but if you do believe them, then, as there is no question upon the law, so there will be none upon the fact. Gentlemen, you will consider of your verdict."

The lord president addressed the prisoners to the following effect:

"You, Edward Marcus Despard; you John Wood; you, Thomas Broughton; you, John Francis; you, Thomas Newman; you, Daniel Tyndall; you, John Sedgwick Wrattan; you, William Lander; you, Arthur Graham; and you, John M'Namara, have been severally indicted for having traitorously conspired against his majesty's person, his crown, and government, for the purposes of subverting the same, and changing the government of this realm. To this indictment you have severally pleaded not guilty, and put yourselves for trial upon God and your country, which country has found you guilty. After a long, patient, and I hope, just and impartial trial, you have been all and severally convicted, by a most respectable jury of your country, upon the several crimes laid to your charge. In the course of evidence upon your trial, such disclosures have been made, as to prove beyond the possibility of doubt, that the objects of your atrocious, abominable, and traitorous conspiracy, were to overthrow the government and to seize upon and destroy the sacred persons of our august and revered sovereign, and the illustrious branches of his royal house, which some of you, by the most solemn bond of your oath of allegiance, were pledged, and all of you, as his majesty's subjects, were indispensably bound, by your duty, to defend; to overthrow that constitution, its established freedom, and boasted usages, which have so long maintained amongst us that just and rational equality of rights and security of property, which have been for so many ages the envy and admiration of the world; and to erect upon its ruins a wild system of anarchy and bloodshed, having for its object the subversion of all property and the massacre of its proprietors; the annihilation of all legitimate authority and established order; for such must be the import of that promise held out by the leaders of this atrocious conspiracy, of ample provision for the families of "those heroes who should fall in the struggle." The more effectually to ensure success in those diabolical machinations, and to encourage those who were to be seduced to their support, endeavours have been made by you and your accomplices, to seduce from their allegiance to their sovereign, the soldiers of his majesty; measures which, though they appear to have been, in too many instances, successful, yet I hope falsely said to be in that extent which has been stated in evidence.

Equally false, I hope, has been another assertion, that two thirds of the inhabitants of this country were ready for a change, and prepared to support and adopt such measures as were likely to be most effectual for obtaining it; a change, by which no less was contemplated, than the subversion of all the sources of law, order and public justice, and the substitution of massacre, anarchy, and all their dire effects. It has, however, pleased that divine Providence, which has mercifully watched over the safety of the nation, to defeat your wicked and abominable purpose by arresting your projects in their dark and dangerous progress, and thus averting that danger which your machinations had suspended over our heads; and by your timely detection, seizure and submittal to public justice, to afford time for the many thousands of his majesty's innocent and loyal subjects, the intended victims of your atrocious and sanguinary purpose, to escape that danger which so recently menaced them and which I trust, has not yet become too formidable for utter defeat.

Happily for the families, and the persons of thousands of your wicked and deluded accomplices, your detection has in time I hope, served to avert the calamities in which they would have inevitably involved themselves, as well as their innocent fellow citizens. The vigilance of that government, unceasingly directed to the public security, was not to be eluded by the dark and mysterious sorcery under which you endeavored to mask your wicked designs; your very endeavors to propagate and promote your projects have been the sources of your defeat; and thus it has happened, that when you imagined your vile purposes to be nearest their completion, they have been fortunately discovered by the very means through which you intended to put them in execution; and thus the intended victims who were on the eve of being involved in all the horrors of your projects, have fresh cause to acknowledge with gratitude the goodness of that all provident God, who has thus timely, and I hope for ever, put a stop to your diabolical plans.

As to you, deluded victims of a desperate and abandoned conspiracy, before I conclude the awful task which remains for me to perform, I wish to say a few words to you on the enormity of those crimes which have brought you to your present melancholy and ignominious situation. And first, you Edward Marcus Despard, in whom the dignified pride of birth, the advantages of a liberal education, & the habits of intercourse in that rank in which your conduct was once so highly honorable, and from whom the testimony borne of your former conduct, by the honorable companions of your early pursuits, adduced in this court as witnesses for your character, should have induced us to expect widely different conduct and principles. How grossly have you misapplied and abused the talents and opportunities which you enjoyed for honorable distinction in society; and how have you degraded yourself to the association of those unfortunate and wretched companions, by whom you are now surrounded, in whose ignominious fate you so justly share; but who are the unhappy victims of your seductive persuasion and example. I do not wish, at this awful moment, to urge any thing to you, and the degrading companions by whom you are surrounded, to sharpen the bitterness of your feelings, under the ignominy of your fate; but I would most earnestly wish to impress your mind, during the short period of your remaining life, with a due sense of your awful situation, and of the criminal conduct which has involved you in your present ignominious fate; I would earnestly entreat you zealously to endeavor to subdue the callous insensibility of heart, of which in an ill fated moment, you have boasted—and regain that sanative affection of the mind, which may prepare your soul for that salvation, which, by the infinite mercy of God, I beseech of that God you may maintain.

And as to you, other unhappy prisoners, the wretched victims of his seduction and example, to what a dreadful and ignominious fate you have brought yourselves, and what sorrow and affliction have been entailed upon your families, by the atrocity of your crimes, and your purposed and sanguinary attempts to subvert that happy constitution and government, under the mild protection of which you might have continued to pursue industrious avocations, and enjoy with comfort, the fruits of your honest and peaceful labors; and the unexampled mildness and merciful tendency of whose laws you have this day experienced in a long, a patient, a fair and most impartial trial, before that respectable and discerning jury, who have convicted you on the fullest and most uncontroverted evidence of your guilt. May the awful and impressive example of your untimely fate, prove a warning to your wicked associates and accomplices, in every quarter of this realm, and induce them to abandon those machinations which have brought you to this disgraceful catastrophe. May they learn to avoid your fate, by cultivating the blessings of that constitution which you have calumniated and endeavored to subvert; and by pursuing their honest and industrious avocations, and avoiding political cabals and seditious conspiracies, avoid also those dreadful consequences in which they themselves would most probably be amongst the first victims.

The same earnest advice I have just given to your unfortunate leader and seducer, I now offer to you, which is, to make the best use of the short period of life now remaining, to make your peace with an offended God for your crimes, and seek mercy in another life, which the interest of your fellow creatures will not suffer to be extended to you here."

English language, called "THE AR-CUS, or London review'd in Paris."
This paper is in open hostility to the British government, and is said to possess much of consular patronage. Thus while Bonaparte is encouraging a disaffected Englishman to defame his country, the British government is punishing an exiled Frenchman for ridiculing the Consular authority!

WILLIAMSPORT, (Pen.) April 7.
We learn that one of the gentlemen who was in pursuit of the villain who committed the horrid act near Pine Creek, has returned, convinced from the information he received at several places on the road, that he has been taken at Shippenburg, and is now confined in Carlisle jail.
This, together with the former account received by the way of Horingdon and Bellevue; which so nearly agree, may, we think, be entitled to credit.—It must give pleasure to every mind possessing the least spark of humanity to hear of the detection of the ungrateful wretch who has committed an action which even the savages would shrink from.

RICHMOND, April 13.
Richmond Election.—Doctor JOHN ADAMS, a federalist was re-elected last Monday, to represent this city in the next General Assembly, by a majority of 15 votes.

WINCHESTER, April 11.
At the final close of the poll, for a representative to Congress, and a Senator and two Delegates to the Legislature of this Commonwealth, on Wednesday evening last, at the Court House in this town, the numbers appeared as follows, viz.

For CONGRESS.
Gen. Smith, 793
Capt. Joseph Sexton, 163
For SENATOR.
Lewis Wolfe, Esq., 731
George North, Esq., 274
For DELEGATES.
Maj. Hugh Holmes, 927
John Milton, Esq., 465
James Chipley, Esq., 462
Samuel Kercheval, Esq., 148

Both the candidates for Congress are Democratic Republicans. The counties of Frederick and Shenandoah compose the district—the election commenced in Shenandoah yesterday—we have not heard the result; but, from every information, General Smith's interest will prevail.— It is said Captain Sexton has declined the contest, but of this we are not certain.

The district for senator is composed of several counties—the ultimate issue of the polls in this will be noticed hereafter.

Three of the candidates for a seat in the House of Assembly are Democratic Republican. John Milton, Esq. an independent honest farmer, was the only Federal Republican that offered.

Lewis Wolfe, Esq. who has gained such a large majority over his opponent in this county for the Senate, is also a Federal Republican.

From the foregoing statement it will be discovered, that the Sun of Federalism has again illuminated this country, and that the moon of democracy is on the wane.

We forgot to mention in our last, that John Ship, Esq. who had declared himself a Candidate for the Congressional seat, declined before the poll commenced—his politics, it is said, are perfectly neutral.

The President's Letter to Governor Clinton.

"The committee to whom was referred that part of the President's Message of the 15th Dec. last which relates to the militia institution of the United States," &c. Reported, that "in order to impress the State Governments with the importance of the subject," &c. "the President of the United States be requested to write to the Executive of each State, urging the importance and indispensable necessity of vigorous exertions on the part of the State Governments to carry into effect the militia system adopted by the National Legislation, agreeably to the powers reserved by the States respectively by the Constitution of the United States," &c. In consequence of which the President has addressed the following letter to our Governor: (N. Y. Ev. Post.)

Washington City, Feb. 1863
SIR,
In compliance with a request of the house of representatives of the U. States, as well as with a sense of what is necessary, I take the liberty of urging on you the importance and indisputable necessity of vigorous exertions, on the part of the State governments, to carry into effect the militia system adopted by the national legislature, agreeably to the power reserved to the states respectively, by the constitution of the United States, and in a manner the best calculated to insure such a degree of military discipline and knowledge of tactics, as will, under the auspices of a benign Providence, render the militia a sure and permanent bulwark of national defence.

None but an armed nation can dispense with a standing army. To keep ours armed and disciplined is, therefore, at all times important—but especially so at a moment when rights the most essential to our welfare have been violated, and an infraction of treaty committed without colour or pretext: and although we are willing to believe that this has been the act of a subordinate agent only, yet, as it is wise to prepare for the possibility that it may have been the leading measure of a system; while, therefore, we are endeavoring, and with a considerable degree of confidence, to obtain by friendly negotiation, a peaceable redress of the injury, and effectual provision against its repetition, let us array the strength of the nation, and be ready to do with promptitude and effect, whatever a regard to justice and our future security may require.

Accept assurance of my high consideration and respect.
(Signed)

TH: JEFFERSON.
To his Excellency the Governor of the State of N. York.

On this letter, written from "a sense of what is necessary" urging an "indispensable necessity" the Editor of the United States Gazette thus remarks:—

The reader will perceive that one part of this presidential letter is arrant nonsense. The sentence beginning, "And although we are willing to believe" &c. is incomplete. Whether the fault lies with the writer or the printer, we know not.

One or two of the sentiments in this letter deserves to be noticed. It is expressly admitted, that "rights themself essential to our welfare have been violated, and an infraction of treaty committed without color or pretext." If the president had added, that two millions of dollars have been secretly appropriated and sent to France, and between two and three thousand more to New Orleans, for the purpose of getting the broken treaty mended, and these violated rights restored, we humbly conceive that the picture here drawn would have been more complete.

We know not exactly what are Mr.
Jefferson's notions of the law of nations.
We should suppose, from the expression here used, that he "is willing to believe" that a private individual of a nation is capable of infringing a public treaty; for if the infraction came from an authorized and accredited officer of the Spanish or French government, it is the act of the government.

It is a little extraordinary that language of this kind should, at this period, be found in an official communication from the president. When Mr. Griswold proposed in Congress a resolution to call upon the president for such documents as he might think proper to communicate relative to the cession of Louisiana to France, the democrats with one voice cried out, that Spain would be offended, because the adoption of the resolution would indicate a suspicion that there had been something unfair on her part. Now the president officially declares, in so many words, that there has been a violation of our rights, and an infraction of treaty without colour or pretext. How is such inconsistency to be accounted for? Must we be forced into the conviction, that though we have ministers resident at the court of Spain and France, the president has been so shamefully negligent of his duty as to suffer more than fifteen months to elapse, after the cession of those provinces was publicly known, without ascertaining in what manner the transfer is to affect our rights and interests? Was it to prevent an exposure of the negligence that the resolution was negatived?

New England Federalism.—The election for Governor in New Hampshire is over. The returns as now received give Governor Gilman, federalist, 11,202 Langdon, democrat, 7,771

Majority, 3,431
A southern democratic paper, we forgot which, but we believe it was the "Baltimore True American," took occasion, about a fortnight since, to congratulate the party on their success in New-Hampshire. The democrats, he said, had only to continue their exertions as they had begun, and federalism would soon receive its last blow in New Hampshire.
So too, Duane congratulated his readers on their increase of numbers in the same state. Now the truth is, that last year the federalists had a greater majority than they had the year before, and this year they have a greater majority than they had last year. The democrats are certainly welcome to console themselves as much as they can with this species of reasoning, nor shall we attempt to disturb their meditations on the pleasing prospect it affords them. It reminds us of the same sort of logic inverse exhibited by the learned Doctor Ledyard in his letter to Mr.
Riker, giving an account of the duel between Swartwout and Clinton: Mr. Clinton's conduct in refusing to fire a sixth time, he says, "was gallant," and he goes on to prove it by saying "it was after two shots had taken effect in a similar direction, giving an intimation to the party to elevate his pistol only for a more decisive fire." Now the first of these shots took effect in the leg, and the second in the ankle, so that according to this process of reasoning and shooting, his friend would in the course of a few discharges more, have fired directly into his own thigh!

To return. The following letter is just received from a respectable correspondent:

"Boston, 5th April 1863.
"You may assure the democrats of New York, who appeared so sure of the revolution of Massachusetts, that they reckoned without their host; and that democracy has long since attained its acme here. The election of yesterday has demonstrated not a firm adherence to the good old cause in the federalists; but a positive falling off in the late democratic phalanx. From every quarter, accounts, not only give governor Strong a larger majority of votes than last year, but Lieutenant Governor and Senators also, who are more and particularly obnoxious, to jacobin abuse and opposition. We have yet had no accounts of the election of a single democratic Senator. Massachusetts, you may rest assured, is safe for one year more at least."

The last eastern papers confirm this account. Returns from a great number of towns and counties give an increase of federalism and decrease of democracy. The editor of the Aegis acknowledges, with a sigh, "The republicans of Massachusetts have again been fairly weighed in the balance, and found wanting. In the present election, as in every preceding effort, they have been completely distanced." So much for the high sounding threats of the democrats, which we have been accustomed for several years to hear, that they would completely revolutionize New England.—No; while the great body of the clergy remain firm, in vain may the rains descend and the floods come and the winds of democracy blow—the Citadel of truth and sound principles shall never fall.
N. Y. Ev. Post.

Philosophic Capricious.
The President finds it necessary to recruit for the public service; but least the people should be alarmed with the terror of war and of having taxes drawn from their pockets, he has all along ordered that the enlisting business should proceed "kill and mite." There is now a recruiting party stationed at this town, (Fredericktown) but they are not allowed to have drum or file. Our worthy President is indeed full of whimsy and fun.
He is constantly mounting some new hobby, too absurd for any person but himself to think of. Witness the dry dock plan.
This was a vast favourite with him for a while; and he actually had a little model of it made for the entertainment of his courtiers, consisting of a mahogany deck about 18 inches long, 12 poplar trigates each 4 inches in length placed 3 abreast, and with this apparatus by the help of a can of water he used to show how the whole process was to be carried on. The rude veto of even his friends in Congress suddenly interrupted his "useful labors," when "in the full tide of successful experiment." At first his Majesty pouted like a child, but he was soon reconciled and like a child indeed he got tired himself in a little time of his own rattle. The same capricious oddity guides him in domestic matters, of which we could retail a whole chapter of true anecdotes. One of his wisest housewife discoveries we have lately heard of, is, that the common notion is quite a mistaken one of its being prejudicial to health to lodge in damp rooms or damp sheets; that in France when they want to recommend their sheets to you as clean, they always say they are damp, &c. Now all such stuff as this to be sure is very trifling; but yet a mere trifle, like "the apparel, oft proclaims the man." An elderly gentleman, some years ago looking at Mr. Jefferson's carriage for his own whirling design and contrivance, ineerly exclaimed, "Puh!

A good mechanical genius spoiled by making a vice president of him." We shall now allow that Mr. Jefferson has a good mechanical genius, because such a genius turns to something more useful than a taste for gewgaws and toys and trumpery.

But we will allow that he might make a tolerable charlatan or Merry Andrew, or any thing else better than President of the U. States.
(Frederick Town Herald.)

Extract of a letter from a gentleman at Port au Prince, dated the 17th ult. to his friend in N. York.

"I feel happy to inform you that I remain in perfect health—there is very little business doing here, and the merchants are all discouraged. Lumber however is in demand: Hoops are from 80 to 95 dollars per M. A French brig from Havre de Grace, bound for this port, anchored on the night of the 11th instant, in sight of the guard ship, and the next morning she was boarded by the brigands and every person on board put to death, being 28 passengers, 14 sailors, and 3 officers making in all 45 persons. Barges were immediately sent from the guard ship, but their efforts were all in vain, for as soon as the Negroes got possession of their prize, they crowded all sail, ran her ashore and immediately set her on fire, and in a short time she was consumed. I hope you will caution all captains to be on their guard in coming up this Bite, as it is very dangerous indeed. I feel very uneasy, and unless an alteration takes place very soon I shall leave this place for the island of Cuba, for all persons living here are in danger of their lives. Four places have been evacuated within the last week, one of which was Petit Guave. The brigands got possession of 8000 cartridges and a der house, containing enough to supply them two years."

Vaccine Inoculation.

For a more general diffusion of this benefit to society—as a means to extinguish that dreadful disease, the Small Pox.

The subscriber proposes to those who wish to extend so important a consideration, that an institution be formed in some respect on the plan of Dr. James Smith of Baltimore—by a subscription of one dollar to intitle to send four, and so in proportion to any number of persons, whose circumstances deny them the benefit otherwise with convenience.

Those disposed to favor the plan will please apply at Mr. Samuel Bishop's Book Store, Royal Street, where a subscription paper is left, or to the subscriber in Prince street.
